Australian Passports – Emergency Passport Applications

In certain circumstances, we can issue you an emergency passport if you need to travel urgently and your existing passport has been stolen, damaged or lost.

Emergency passports can take up to three (3) working days to be issued. We recommend waiting for the decision on whether an emergency passport can be issued before making firm travel plans or purchasing tickets.

Emergency passports have only four visa pages, no electronic chip and are generally used to facilitate return travel to Australia.

Not returning to Australia?

Some countries do not allow travellers to enter on emergency passports. You should check with the relevant embassy or consulate of the country you are travelling to confirm if they will accept an emergency passport.

An emergency passport is normally issued for 7 months as most countries that allow entry with an emergency passport, require passports to have at least 6 months of validity remaining.
